Some thoughts:

Soil samples collected from your property did not exceed levels considered acceptable by EPA for short or long term exposures.

Soil samples collected from your property did not exceed levels considered acceptable by EPA for short term exposures. For long term exposures, concentrations fell within the accepted range established by EPA.

Since only a limited number of soil samples were collected on your property and only to a depth of two feet, it is our recommendation that excessive digging or trenching be limited until the extent of contamination on the site is better understood.
